PERSONAL CAREER GOAL

As growth is the most important career goal and there is never a limit for the growth of an individual in a job, I feel I should always look into it. To achieve this, I do realize that being diligent and dedicated to my job is one of the most important aspects of growing. Therefore, one should be dedicated and serious about his/her job. Besides, upgrading one's knowledge and resources to grow as a professional is another major career goal that I intend to keep pursuing. In our professional life, it is not enough to progress and get ahead in life, but also to learn new things and gain new experiences.

Another important goal to me is satisfaction with and being convinced of what I'm doing; yet this does not mean at all to me to stop experimenting or impede my enhancement process since a hardworking individual is always seeking to become so experienced in his/her profession and reach the level of being a consultant in his field.
