

Abstract:

Background: Software is an important asset for organizations and development teams. It must evolve over time in order to meet different changes in its environment, satisfy the developers' needs, and adapt to new requirements.